Artillery Duels and Skirmishes Mark Fighting in Flanders and North France Say Today's Official Announcements.

On the two battle fronts—from the Belgian coast to the Swiss border, and along the western boundary of Germany—renewed efforts were being made today to bring about a decided turn in the progress of the war.

The situation in eastern Prussia presented apparently the greatest opportunity for a quick and important change, although Russian and German statements were still in sharp conflict. The German war office announced officially today that the operations against the Russians were "proceeding favorably."

The Russians, it is said, have been compelled to fall back from Wloclawek and Lupo. The latest statement from Petrograd, however, asserted that the Germans were retiring along the whole east Prussian front. It was also indicated in advices from Petrograd that an important Russian force has penetrated to the extreme southern section of Galicia, where furious fighting is said to be in progress. The Austrian troops are reported to be fleeing in great disorder.

In Belgium the Germans have begun fearful onslaughts, in a region which is becoming more and more restricted. The allies have succeeded in flooding a further area, so that heavy infantry fighting is almost impossible from the sea coast nearly to Ypres.

A new bombardment of Belgian coast towns by British warships is said to have inflicted heavy damage to the German positions and to have destroyed a large quantity of ammunition and stores.

The American cruiser Tennessee, whose commander was reported last night to have entered the port of Smyrna by force, after a launch from the warship had been fired on by the Turks, has been sent away, on orders of the American ambassador, Henry Morgenthau. She arrived at the island of Chios, a Greek possession in the Aegean sea. Captain Decker, the ship's commander, in a report to the navy department at Washington on his arrival at Chios, said that the Tennessee had been fired upon.

London, Nov. 18.—A Rotterdam dispatch to the Daily Mail says: "The British fleet received information Monday which led them to carry out a vigorous bombardment at Knocke and Zeebrugge, on the Belgian coast. The Solway Company's works at the Brugge ship canal, which are being used as a base for German military trains, was wrecked. A train of five cars filled with soldiers was struck by a shell, took fire and was destroyed. Much damage was done to the Tells of Repulse.

London, Nov. 18.—The official information bureau today gave out a statement as follows:

"Our third division was subjected yesterday to a heavy attack, first from artillery and then from infantry, the bulk of both falling upon two battalions of the division. These were shelled out of their trenches, but they recovered after a brilliant counter-attack which drove the enemy back in disorder for 500 yards.

"During the day an attack was also made on a brigade of the second division. In this the enemy was repulsed with heavy losses."

German stores and supplies." More Artillery Duels.
Paris, Nov. 18.—The French official statement given out in Paris this afternoon says that yesterday saw numerous artillery duels and some isolated infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed.

The text of the communication follows:

"The day of yesterday, Nov. 17, passed much as did the day before. There were numerous artillery exchanges and some isolated attacks on the part of the enemy's infantry, all of which were repulsed.

"From the North Sea to the Lys the front was subjected to a thoroughly effective bombardment, particularly at Nieuport and to the east and to the south of Ypres.

"Near Bouchoute the Zouaves, charging with the bayonet, brilliantly took possession of a forest which has been disputed between the enemy and ourselves for three days.

"To the south of Ypres an offensive movement on the part of the enemy's infantry was repulsed by our troops. The English army also maintained its front.

"Near Arras to the Oise there is nothing new to report.

"In the region of Crayonne our artillery on several occasions secured the advantage over the batteries of the enemy.

"The bombardment of Rheims has continued. From Rheims to the Argonne there is nothing new to report. In the region of St. Mihiel in spite of counter attacks of the Germans we have retained in our possession the western part of the village of Chauvencourt.

"In Alsace, the Landwehr battalions sent into the region from St. Marie-Aux-Mines, have had to be taken out for the reason that they lost one-half of their effective strength."

The young man was a neighbor of his and had grown up with his children. Arthur Tedor, who was with Van Hovenberg when the assault was committed, is still held in the Eau Claire jail.

GOVERNMENT AWAITS OFFICIAL REPORT ON INCIDENT AT SMYRNA.

Cruiser Tennessee's Launch Fired at By Turks—Details Are Yet Lacking.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The United States cruiser Tennessee, or her launch—probably the latter—was fired upon by the Turks' forts at Smyrna. Capt. Benton G. Decker of the cruiser reporting the incident today to the navy department, gave no details of the firing, but added that fears had been felt for the safety of the American consulate.

While awaiting further reports from Captain Decker and others from Ambassador Morgenthau and Consul General Horton, officials here have two theories. One is that the cruiser may have been fired upon in order to protect the consul and American and other foreigners. They draw this from Captain Decker's statement that fears had been felt for the safety of the consulate.

Second Theory.
The other is that Captain Decker had called on Consul General Horton, who after having been fired upon, was taken back to shore by the cruiser's launch, which may have been returning after hours of duty prescribed by port officials which are very strict. Before regarding the firing upon the American ship as a hostile act, officials here are inclined to await further reports and hold to the belief that it might have been a misunderstanding or the act of some local official which will quickly be corrected in Constantinople.

GERMAN ADVANCE IN RUSSIAN POLAND IS GIVEN IN DISPATCH

Sudden Attack by Germans Causes Surprise in War Circles.

London, Nov. 18.—No change in the coldscope operations in Russian Poland has been more startling than the sudden resumption of the offensive movement on the part of the Germans, a movement by which the Russian line has been attacked and Warsaw again threatened.

Conflicting reports arrived from the neighborhood of these operations. Petrograd does not deny that the Germans have resumed the offensive, but dispatches from the Russian capital deny that such a movement will not cause the slightest diversion from the Russian invasion of East Prussia, which is proceeding slowly but steadily. Meanwhile Berlin claims a victory near Lipo, impelling the Russian forces, which according to German reports, must make a stand before crossing the Vistula river and the retirement behind that stream would be difficult.

Retired Chief of Staff Says Present Garrisons Are Inadequate to Defend Outlying Pos- sessions.

Washington, Nov. 18.—General Carranza has repudiated the telegram sent to him in Gen. Pueblo Gonzales to Gen. Gutierrez in which the first chief was represented as saying he would retire. This was announced today in an official dispatch from American Consul Silliman.

Carranza declared that he had been misunderstood. In the telegram Gonzales sent on behalf of Carranza, the first chief was described as ready to resign if both he and the Villa relinquished their command and met in Havana not later than Nov. 25. No mention was made of the man to whom the executive power was to be delivered, and Carranza now declares he never intended to resign in favor of Gutierrez, and will not deliver his office to any man whom he could not trust to carry out conditions he imposed.

While American Consul Silliman reported that great efforts were being made to patch up the difficulties through mediation, other official advices said that big troop movements were under way and that a battle was imminent near Mexico City where the Villa troops are now advancing southward.

MEET COMPETITION WITH BETTER CROP

President of Wisconsin Potato Grow- ers' Association Advises Need of Superior Product.

Grand Rapids, Wis., Nov. 18.—J. W. Hild, president of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' association here today, declared that other states, notably Idaho, are planning to enter the Wisconsin potato market and capture the business, and he called upon the Wisconsin growers to meet this competition and win with superior goods.

"Wisconsin leads with her pure bred cattle," he said, "her splendid sheep and hogs, her horses and her seed grain, her butter, her cheese and her large returns from fertile acres. She leads in the quality of her potatoes, and how she can do it is the question we are here to help solve."

President Hild said that Wisconsin potatoes sold at 40 to 45 cents in Portland last in Chicago on Oct. 21, last, while Idaho tubers sold at 35 cents per peck in the same market. The reason, he said, for Idaho's high price was that they were ripe, sound and healthy, although they were full of little ones, and that an efficient salesman had the nerve to insist that Idaho potatoes were good potatoes and prove it by asking a higher price.

The president invited Wisconsin growers to follow the system by which Germany has acquired such a large part of the world's trade, and by careful and systematic preparation producing the identical goods demanded by the market, instead of forcing the market to take what the producer may see fit to give.

The Wisconsin potato crop this year is estimated at 38 million bushels.

The departure of Mr. and Mrs. Herrick will be the last of a most successful and pleasant stay in France. There will be no farewell banquet, nor any other demonstration because, as the ambassador said, these days in France are extremely tense and sad.

AN AMERICAN-MADE CHRISTMAS

Christmas novelties and especially Christmas toys have litherto come from abroad in large numbers.

This year imports are curtailed and the deficiencies have been largely made up by American manufacturers.

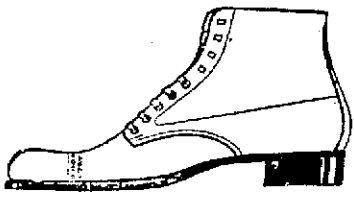

An American-made Christmas is not likely to prove any the less interesting to the kiddies.

The announcements of the stores show no dearth of stocks. They are full of interesting and especially so to the children.

There is a ring of patriotism about the advertising that makes it unusually interesting.

Photo shows a French ambulance corps removing the wounded from the battlefield during a lull in the terrific fighting in that section. The cattle was so long drawn out that many of the wounded who might otherwise have been saved died of hunger and exposure before help could come to them.

ALBANY MAN INJURED EYES WHEN SPRAYING TANK EXPLODES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Albany, Nov. 18.—Herman Hein had a serious accident last Tuesday when the time and acid in a spray pump exploded and hit his eyes. He was spraying a hen house when the pump became clogged, and as he was trying to fix it it exploded. He was taken right away to Madison, where the best medical treatment was given. The latest report is that he is doing nicely. It is thought that the sight of one eye can be saved. His wife and daughter visited him there the latter part of the week.

DOUGAN FARM BARN PERFECT IN DETAIL

ALLEN B. WEST DESCRIBES LATEST WORD IN CONSTRUCTION OF STRUCTURE OF ITS KIND.

A MODERN STRUCTURE

Building Erected to Secure Most Adequate Facilities at Minimum Expenditure.

In the recent account of a visit to the Dougan Guernsey farm only brief mention was made of the barn, the subject being one of such importance it was thought best to treat it in a separate article. The barn on this place is not the ordinary rectangular type. Perhaps it is because Mr. Dougan was formerly a clergyman, and so familiar with the words of Holy Writ that he puts into practice in his farm operation the injunction of Paul to the Thessalonians, "Prove all things and hold fast to that which is good." Certain it is that when he began to plan for the erection of a barn he was not satisfied to build after the prevailing fashion because it was customary, or because it was easier to get a carpenter to build in that way, but decided first to investigate the matter and to decide for himself what kind of a barn would be best suited to his needs. The result of his investigation led him to decide upon a round barn for three reasons: The Round Barn Most Convenient. First—The round barn is more convenient than any other form. The ground floor of the Dougan barn is divided into four circles, the center one being the fourteen foot silo around which in the second circle is the feeding floor of cement about nine feet in width. The third circle contains the cows facing in also on a cement floor with cement mangers, the fourth and outside circle being the one occupied by the milkers in milking and caring for the cows and milking of the manure. This is wide enough to admit of a wagon being driven in if desired, the entire diameter of the barn being sixty-four feet.

Mr. Dougan claims that as cows are wedge shaped animals, the greatest economy of space is secured by placing them in the circle and certainly to an unprejudiced observer it appears as if it would be difficult to secure greater convenience in a barn for a herd. As one stands in the feeding floor all of the cows, excepting those few hidden by the silo, are in sight, so they are practically all under the eye of the herdsman at the same time. Each cow also is equally distant from the silo, and though not quite equally distant from the point at which the silage is taken there is but little difference. The silage and the hay or roughage and the grain from the floor above come down from chutes near the silo and are distributed from a cart. When the cart distributing feed has made its round of the cows it is back at

Bring Back Your Appetite

With a Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet, the Secret of Perfect Digestion.

You should see our farmers and their boys eating in the fields. On the farm five meals a day is the rule. No one ever has stomach trouble because meals are digested and people live normally.

Farmer Boy—"Just think of brother, see in the city. He can't eat. Why, a sandwich like this would kill him." A majority of people have come to know the blessings which an occasional use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets confer upon the stomach. They are unquestionably the most popular remedy known, for the reason that dyspepsia is the national disease, and these wonderful little tablets have long since acquired a national reputation as a thoroughly reliable and efficient cure for all forms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

No matter how great the excess of food taken into the stomach, one or two of these tablets will digest every particle of it. A package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should always be in the house. Many a person has saved himself from a serious attack of acute indigestion by using them after heavy meals, such as are eaten Christmas, New Year's, Thanksgiving, and other holidays and festive seasons. After attending banquets, late suppers, heavy fancy dinners, after-theatre parties, where one has dined sumptuously and luxuriously, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should invariably be used, as they digest the food perfectly and completely, and prevent all possibility of dyspepsia, which, without their use, is more than likely to ensue.

Go to your druggist today and buy a box. A small sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will be mailed free to any one who will address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

the place where it started, ready for the next feeding, the alley being wide enough so that no more hay has been put down than is needed to be put down on the cart undisturbed until next feeding. If not enough hay was put down it is not difficult to get more as no great distance is traveled in distributing it, no cow being very far from the source of supply.

When one considers that a barn is used twice a day for 365 days in a year and that during six months of this time a large portion of the work of a dairy farm is done inside the barn, it certainly pays to have a barn so planned so as to economize labor and time.

The saving of a few minutes per man each day will amount to hours in the aggregate. Possibly it is because of its economy of time in performing daily barn work that Mr. Dougan is able to close the days work at the barn at 4 p. m. as is his rule, and can also give each man a half day off during the six working days of the week.

Going to the second floor of Mr. Dougan's barn we found a large, unobstructed by any timbers, for the roof of this barn is of the self-supporting type, which gives much more room than a barn made with a straight roof, and has the extra advantage of having no rafters over which the hay must be dragged.

A hay carrier on a circular track runs around the mow, midway between the silo and the outside wall, and drops the hay only one step, thus making the task of filling the mow much less than in the rectangular barn where in mowing away, the hay must be moved much further. When the hay is ready for the silo the ensilage cutter is put into place near the silo, the loads of corn are rolled in beside it, the connections are made with the engine housed in an adjacent room built for the purpose and the ensilage is cut and blown to the top of the 50-foot silo.

Later when the remaining corn is run and ready for husking the corn shredder is put in place and the corn brought in and run through the shredder and the shredded corn stalks blown into the mow, the corn being elevated into the proper bins. When this is done the shredder is put into its place of storage and the feed mill takes its place and the feed being used for the stock, the same engine being used for all these operations, the result is that in any case, be it silage, shredded corn stalks or grain being left in such position that it is convenient to the chutes through which it passes to the floor below for feeding.

The Round Barn Stronger Than the Rectangular Barn.

The second reason Mr. Dougan gave for building a round barn was because such a barn is the strongest barn. Anyone knows that a piece of timber is many times stronger on a lineal pull than on a breaking stress, so each row of boards running around the barn forms a hoop that holds the barn together in any direction, and the immense barrel, which when properly hooped and headed is much stronger than a box.

Then, too, all the exposed surface on a round barn are circular, and wind can get no hold upon it as it can on the flat sides or gable ends of a rectangular barn.

It is also an item of importance to have the silo in the center of the barn, made of solid cement supports the center of the roof, and to the joists of the floor running into the silo are not only supported but tie the walls together, insuring firmly to the solid masonry of the silo.

Round Barn Cheapest.

The third reason for building a round barn is the round barn is the cheapest barn. In deciding to build a round barn Mr. Dougan took into consideration the mathematical proposition that the circular enclosure requires less material for the amount of room enclosed than any other form of structure. Nor was this the only thing to be considered. The round barn is built for four cows. If a rectangular barn was built it would be necessary to place the silo outside the barn. For the forty cows the diameter of the silo would not be more than sixteen feet to insure the keeping of the silage in summer and as the height of the outside silo above the ground to insure stability should not be more than twice the diameter it is plain to be seen that one silo would not be large enough for the herd, so in making comparison of cost it would be necessary to estimate the cost of two silos in the place of one.

Adding then the cost of the extra material required for the rectangular barn and the second silo, Mr. Dougan found that it exceeded the cost of material for a round barn and enclosed silo by from 25 per cent to 50 per cent, depending upon whether the rectangular barn should have a plank or mortised frame. Now it did not seem good sense to pay out half as much more than was necessary, for material and hire on a round barn work it into a barn less strong and less convenient, than one which could be built for less, so the result was a decision for the round barn.

Health of the Herd. The health of the herd is conserved in Mr. Dougan's barn. The King system of ventilation is used, with a shaft ventilating open at the bottom economically placed along each side of the silo. There are also windows on both floors (those of the stable being screened) so there are no dark corners to harbor dirt and disease germs in the entire structure, and owing to the circular shape the stable gets the sunlight in some portion at all hours of the day.

At night the barn is lighted by electricity from an electric plant in the dwelling house. A little addition at the side of the barn toward the house through which one enters and leaves the stable provides a room for weighing and recording at milking time each cow's milk, the scales and record sheet being conveniently placed. In watching the daily record one is not only able to know the actual work of each cow, but is able to detect at once any variation in the milk flow that may indicate something wrong in the cow, and is thus prepared to check it before it becomes serious.

The James cow stalls are used, the cement feeding troughs being so placed that one cow cannot steal feed from another. The herdsman then in making his rounds is able to gauge each cow's feed according to her individual needs, and being able easily to observe them all is able to tell if a cow has left any of her feed, which condition would call for investigation.

To sum it all up, the impression one gets from a visit to the barn of the Dougan Guernsey farm is that it is not only the home of a scientific dairy, but a pleasant place in which to work, because it is arranged in such a way that the work is done economically, scientifically and attractively.

SAYS EXTERMINATION IS SUREST REMEDY

Federal Official Discusses Efficacy of Measures Used in Fighting Hoof and Mouth Disease.

Dr. G. W. Wright of Kansas City, one of the federal officials in Rock county to aid in the fight on the hoof and mouth disease discovered several herds, declared last evening in an address before the Baptist Brotherhood that complete extermination of all animals infected is the only sure way of stamping out the disease which is supposed to be responsible for the scourge.

Why the government has taken such drastic steps, ordering the slaughter of all animals on farms where the disease is found, without salvage of any kind in the way of hides, pelts or soap greases, is not for me to say or attempt to explain," said Dr. Wright. "We know, however that this plague does not exist in this condition under normal conditions, but has been brought here by various means from foreign countries. By the eradication and complete destruction of the germ we can free the United States of the scourge which, if unchecked, will cause stockmen untold losses, while the infection would spread until it would be impossible to stamp it out with the methods of fighting that are known at present.

"The disease is common in Europe and in the Philippine Islands, where it prevails among the native herds to a greater or less degree. In these countries no drastic steps have been taken to exterminate the disease germs, and as a result it has spread to an enormous extent. The disease is not nearly so fatal to the stock as it is here, but one epidemic another is likely to follow, and animals are never immune after once suffering with it. The plague weakens the mortality and strength of the herd at an alarming rate."

Dr. Wright explained the symptoms of the disease and the rapidity with which contagion spreads. He said that the government faces the most difficult problem of eradication in the states of Michigan and Illinois, where there has been a bad case of trouble experienced in quarantine.

Dr. A. C. Lemery of Kansas City and Dr. C. P. Snyder of St. Louis, two other government agents here in connection with the epidemic, also spoke briefly.

J. B. Humphrey was leader for the evening. There were about a hundred persons present, including a number of physicians and farmers, who were specially interested to hear what the experts had to say.

Dr. E. S. Loomis of this city spoke briefly on the danger of human beings becoming infected with the disease.

GERMAN WINE DISTRICTS SUFFER GREAT LOSSES.

(Correspondence of The A. P.) Berlin, Nov. 17.—Germany's best wine-producing district, Alsace-Lorraine, has suffered heavily by the war, and it is claimed that the output this year will be far below normal. Alsace, especially, has a poor crop according to reports. Not alone had the bad seasons of the last ten years caused a reduction of the area of vineyards to 108,840 but the earlier months of the year were very unfavorable in southern Alsace where the plant. The vines were affected by phylloxera which incessant cold rains made worse, and then, when hot weather finally came, the war broke out in southern Alsace where the valleys and hillside of the Vosges are almost entirely given to vine growing, many vineyards were cut down in order to facilitate military operations, while others were trampled down during battles. The result of this has been that the wine crop of Alsace will be approximately one-third normal. Conditions in Lorraine are better. Though some of the vineyards around Metz were cut when the war began, the crop generally is plentiful enough to discount this. The quality, moreover, is said to equal that of normal years. Good weather early in the season favored a good average crop, and, unlike those of Alsace and eastern France, the fine growers of Lorraine scarcely have given their vineyards all needed care.

Peruna Is A Tonic and Strength Builder So Says

Mrs. Frank Stroebbe, R. F. D. 1, Appleton Wis. Her letter reads: "I began using Peruna a few months ago when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck. Could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live.

"Three bottles of Peruna made me look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength. While my recovery took nearly four months, at the end of that time I was better than I ever had been before. I had a splendid color and never weighed more in my life.

DELAVAN DEAF MUTES HIGH'S FOE SATURDAY

Curtis' Men Preparing for Hard Battle With Dummies Here This Week—Have Two Games Yet to Play.

Janesville High will meet the Delavan deaf mutes in this city at 8 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Driving Park Association grounds. A week from Saturday, the eleven will close their schedule with the Jefferson High on the same grounds, unless a post season game can be arranged for Thanksgiving, or the following Friday or Saturday. It is understood that Waukesha want to play the high, and Curtis is making an effort to arrange such a game to be played in this city.

The game for this week with the dummies will not be easy meat for the locals. It appears that since their battle with Beloit last week, Curtis' men have got their bearings, but just what they will do against the heavier state school is doubtful. Reeling back the game against Beloit meant just as much as a victory to the blues, as their desire to subdue the dummies, Jefferson and Waukesha, if possible, and end the season with a trio of victories.

The lights should have played Delavan earlier in the year, but owing to the abolition of athletics for a short period, the cancellation of the contest was made through force. Curtis' men have been held this week, and every man is in the pink of condition. Deafmutes' injury of last Saturday was short-lived, and he is ready, together with the rest of the team, to aid of the line, to tear off gains that will result in a victory Saturday. While it is not expected the enthusiasm last week will be duplicated again at the dummy game, still there is every reason to believe that a record attendance will be present at the conflict.

CHURCH BASKETBALL TEAMS ARE ANXIOUS

Season Will Commence in a Few Weeks—Strong Fives to Be Entered.—Meetings Have Been Held.

With the exception of a few minor changes in the rules, and the mapping out of the schedule, everything is in readiness for the opening of the second season of the new church basketball league, which was so successfully organized and carried out last winter.

It is certain that the same churches that entered teams in the league last season are making plans to return to teams to the front for the current year. While the race last season was only fought out strenuously by the Congregational and Methodist, the other three strong teams, and make things interesting for the leaders in their fight for supremacy. The Congregational won the cup and title from the Cargill squad last spring, after a whirlwind finish.

The officers of the league have met and drawn up the new rules for qualification, and made other regulations. Some changes were made, but the age limit remained firm at 21. At a meeting of the Cargill Methodist aspirants for the team, held at seven o'clock last evening at the high school science room, Walter Williams, formerly on last year's five, was chosen captain to succeed Paul Richards, the 1914 center. D. D. Marston, who is leader of the group of boys whose ages are between fifteen and 21, was chosen manager of the squad. Other churches will hold sessions shortly and elect their captains and managers. The Methodist boys decided that they will don uniforms and get the start on the other teams.

WAR HAS NOT INJURED AMERICAN SPORT WORLD.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

(By Hal Sheridan.)
New York, Nov. 18.—War, closing of stock exchanges and business complaints apparently can't hurt American sports. The World's Series grabbed a share of first pages from the war news, football has gone on with a whoop and every other branch of sport is booming.

Among the winter sports, hockey and basketball teams are now tuning up for a big year. It is promised throughout the country. Boxing is going strong in New York and other towns where the limited round bouts are staged regularly. Preparations are already being made for indoor track season, and an eye is being kept out for the outdoor work in the spring.

The Panama-Pacific Exposition managers are banking on their athletic events to turn out a complete success. They have a schedule which carries through from February to October and more events are to be added.

Sport Snap Shots

Joe Cantillon of the Millers undoubtedly made an advantageous deal when he turned Henri Rondeau over to the Washington club in exchange for the five ball players, every one of whom is almost sure to make good for the Millers. In Holland and Morley Jennings Cantillon obtains a pair of infielders who are sure to be among the best in the association, while in "Mutt" Williams he will have a pitcher who is sure to develop into a star of the first water. Tom Wilson, the young catcher, is certain to develop into a star because he has a world of natural ability and needs only experience to bring him to the front. He is sure to get a lot of that, for Cantillon does not carry many catchers, and Wilson is apt to work most of the games. Carl Cashion, the fifth player to go to Minneapolis, also should prove of value. Joe will try to develop him into a first baseman. Cashion is a great hitter, and when played regularly will show this to be a fact.

Ad Wolgast, who strove so valiantly to regain his title from Freddie Welsh in a recent bout, has earned money in the ring than any lightweight in the history of the game. Adolph has poured a mine over $300,000 into his coffers since he adopted boxing as a profession seven years ago. He has won more than $25,000. Little Ad has never suffered the ignominy of a knock-out and has been knocked out twice in his ring career—once when he won the title from Nelson and the other time when he lost to Ritchie. Adolphus has the betting fever, and he needs to battle in his best form. In his championship battle with Nelson, Wolgast backed himself to the extent of $5,000, which he won, and he lost $7,000 in wagers when he passed over the title to Ritchie.

Among the many experiences that have been encountered by Three-fingered Brown, the noted pitcher, was a criticism by a youthful innochie rooster. This was several years ago, and the club with which Brown then was associated was having a run of losing games. One day the team happened to be putting forth a game which was particularly sad. Brown was not pitching that afternoon and had occasion to pass along the fence on his way across the field. This was what he heard in the voice of a disgusted archer on the other side of the barrier: "Hey, you. If you guys can't play better ball dan dat, I'm gonna quit comin' out to see ya'!"

es with the most vivacious ecia.

Any manager in his first season with a club that finishes higher than it did in the previous season may rightly claim to have been successful. That claim belongs to Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn team this season by landing the Dodgers in fifth place. Robinson has a long-term contract with Brooklyn and would not be surprising to see him land a winner before his term of service expires. This year he had the best hitting club in the National League in team hitting from the beginning of the season. However, the team lacked pitchers, but with the large number signed for next year, Robinson has hopes of developing a strong staff of twirlers.

BROWNS DOWN REDS IN EXCITING MATCH

Merrick's Quintet Are Given Close Contest by Huebel's Five—Maroons and Cards Meet Friday.

Captain Huebel's Reds lost their second straight match in the new Y. M. C. A. bowling league last evening at the association, the Browns, led by Charlie Merrick, trimming them by 24 pins. AT THE APOLLO.

As a result of the Paramount Picture Program the Apollo is enabled to present tonight one of the stage's most distinguished stars, Henrietta Crossman. It would be impossible to bring stars of such eminence to Janesville, but through Paramount they are seen at their best. Nothing so high class as these photo plays have ever been seen here before except as a single attraction and then at a high price. These big productions come here from the Studebaker Theatre in Chicago, where they were shown at prices that ranged from two to five times the price asked here. The play tonight will be "The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch."

MARY PICKFORD COMING.

Manager Zanias announces a treat for next Tuesday in the appearance of America's sweetheart, Mary Pickford, in "Eagle's Mate," a drama of the Virginia mountains. On Monday Hobart Bosworth will be seen in another of Jack London's wonderful stories, "Burning Daylight," and on Wednesday Edward Aheles will be seen in the pretty romance, "The Making of Bobby Burnit."

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Annette Kellermann, who sprung into prominence as an exponent of aquatic feats, has recently returned from Bermuda where she spent three months in a moving picture production of "Neptune's Daughter," an eight-reel feature which will be exhibited at Myers Theatre for 4 performances on Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Kellermann says that her experience in making moving pictures has opened her eyes to what she considers one of the most remarkable institutions of the twentieth century.

"It is marvelous," says Miss Kellermann. "What a wonderful thing the art of pantomime, which is ninety per cent of moving pictures, is. When we stop to consider that with a vocabulary of five hundred words one can go through life, abundantly able to express our hopes, our fears, our wishes and the demands made on us in answering and asking questions, incidental to ordinary conversation, and that it has been said in the course of ordinary business, outside of technical lines, that a vocabulary of a thousand to twelve hundred words is all that a man needs in that line of vocation. That the college graduate is equipped with only three thousand words and that the man who has six thousand words at his command is considered to be boundedly endowed.

"Yet, with moving pictures, one is able to express without a single word, the entire gamut of human emotions and convey it with merely a series of gestures and facial expressions. This to my mind," continues Miss Kellermann, "is one of the most remarkable things connected with the human life. Just think, that a moving picture conveys to the native of China, who has never heard ly understands the technique of this story....

"Moving pictures speak a universal language and offer a means of communication to all the world in a common tongue, the same thoughts, the same ideas and the same story."

BELGIAN REFUGEES FIND HOMES IN GERMAN PLACES VACATED IN LONDON CITY.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)
London, Nov. 18.—By a strange stroke of fortune, says the Pall Mall Gazette, a large number of the Belgian refugees who have arrived in London are finding accommodation in a district which, before the outbreak of hostilities, formed one of the chief German colonies in the Metropolitan—Forest Hill and Sydenham. Many of the visitors are well-to-do, and are renting good-sized houses in the neighborhood, while less fortunately endowed are being quartered upon sympathizers. Although the German male residents have gone back to Germany, there are still a number of their womenfolk around Forest Hill.

INDIVIDUAL EFFORT.

This nation of ours has more than its share of uplifters who understand everyone else's business far better than they understand it themselves. It has listened to the cry of this or that reform being the remedy for all evils that beset mankind in the pursuit of business. Some have been followed with disastrous results. Politicians followed the will of the wisest of the ultra progressives and saddled a democratic administration on the country as a whole two years ago. Wisconsin has long been the experimental state, the melting pot of ideas it would seem, and as a result the taxes are higher than ever before and with the additional democratic war revenue taxes to be imposed, will be still higher.

However, we must be optimistic about it. We must talk good times, not hard times. Charity begins at home and often stays there. When reform begins at home it often appears outward without effort or consciousness.

This is the time that every man must do what he can, chiefly in the direction of minding his own business. Do you believe that the business of the country has turned and is on the road to prosperity? Then expand your credits, lend your money by the purchase of sound bonds or investment in sound business industries, work harder and do not spend quite so much time at your club, or even in your office, explaining the reasons for the war, or the shortcomings of the administration.

Do you want to take advantage of the trade openings arising out of the war in Europe? Then do not wait for organizations to clear the way for you, or for the administration to embark in speculative operations in cotton, tobacco or ships. Get in touch with banking houses who know how such trade should be financed. Work a few hours a day longer, and find out what new customers want in the way of design, packing and credit. Doubtless there are opportunities, but it is for you to seize them.

Do you want to see a better basis of credit for the railroads, a reduction of wastefulness in government, the abolition of useless, expensive and obstructive commissions? Tell your congressman so, and tell him often. So long as he does not care, you may be perfectly certain it is because you are too indolent to protest. You are getting the kind of government you deserve. How do you like it?

If you do not like it, do not say that the policies of a country you are proud to live in, or, in other words, the government of that country, are beneath the attention of business men. Doubtless some of the politicians are cheap enough. But good government is not cheap so far as personal sacrifice is concerned; and if you will not make the sacrifice, why do you expect your neighbors to do so?

PRO-AMERICAN.

Be a pro-American. Do not become a pro-German, a pro-Allies advocate, but as a citizen of the United States, this great and glorious country, be pro-American first, last and always. Every man has a right to his own opinion. Each citizen can believe the right or wrong of this or that nation in the foreign struggle now being waged, but do not try to impress that belief by arguments that engender bad feelings upon others. The useless war that is being waged is senseless enough at best. Its merits and demerits are not at issue in the business world of America and should not be brought into questions of daily life. Be an American. Be pro-American and while your personal sympathy may be with the German, the Austrian, the French, the English, the Russian, the Turkish or Serbian people, do not try to insist that your views are right and that everyone who does not think as you do is wrong, absolutely wrong. Unfortunately the rigid press censorship of the warring nations does not permit of unbiased news reaching the American press. Come from what source it may, it is colored to suit the will of the press censor through whose hands it is forwarded. We read of terrible battles, awful carnage, appalling loss of life by Germans and allies, by Russians and Austrians, and yet we do not know but a small part of the real truth. Time alone can remedy this defect and when the war is over we may learn the truth or falsity of some of the statements now given circulation under the guise of coming from responsible sources. Meanwhile, remember that we are all Americans and be pro-American no matter what our personal sympathies may be. It will save lots of trouble, prevent breaking of friendships of years and make life much more pleasant in any community where the war spirit is rampant.

THE TURK AND THE WAR.

Has the possible elimination of the Turk from European politics, in fact from the world-wide policies, been foreshadowed by the entrance of this country into the present great war of ages? Writers who follow the situation carefully are prone to believe that this is a possibility and the Wall Street Journal sees the elimination of the Turk. It calls attention to the fact that in the British prime minister's speech, at the lord mayor's banquet in London, occurs a most historically significant sentence. He said that the entry of Turkey into the war meant "the death knell of the Ottoman domination, not only in Europe, but in Asia." At last, Russia may place her feet in the warm waters of the Mediterranean. But, with the usual shortsightedness of German diplomacy, the alliance with Turkey means the destruction of all German hopes in the east.

As an independent entity, Turkey disappears. Russia will not own the Constantinople shore of the Bosphorus and the Sea of Marmora, but both sides. Great Britain will take over, not merely Egypt, by absolute annexation, which she is now entitled to do, but Arabia, Syria, all the German railroad concessions and sphere of influence in the Euphrates valley, all Asiatic Turkey to the frontier of Persia, making a continuous British Empire from the Italian border of Tripoli in Africa to Siam, for southern Persia is merely a protectorate, and Beloochistan is no more.

It is sometimes forgotten that the German word "Kultur" does not mean refinement, intellectual superiority, good manners and a ready understanding of one's neighbor's point of view. It means, if it knew enough to express itself, exactly "efficiency," in the sense of our own admirable Taylor school, which teaches how to get the greatest possible results with the least effort.

Will nothing but a repetition of Belgian devastation on German soil, with the deprival of all her colonies and all her foreign trade, teach Prussia this elementary lesson? And how long will Bavaria, Saxony, Wurttemberg and the rest of the self-governing kingdoms of the German Federation need to learn the lesson, and to enforce it upon the Prussian dynasty?

Here is a question for mathematicians to puzzle over. The war loans up to date have totaled something like $3,000,000,000. Where has all this money come from and where is it all going to? True, the American manufacturers are going to get a good share of it, but what will be its ultimate end?

The cry for the relief of the suffering Belgians has not reached deaf ears and the results should be most gratifying. The fund is growing slowly, it is true, but growing, and various Janesville ladies and organizations are busy with other weeks of mercy for those who are suffering from the struggle which is shaking the whole world.

Chicago must have missed that stock yards smell for the week the yards were closed. One of the great attractions to the Windy City was missing, but still the hold-up men managed to attract stray visitors to witness the explosion on the lake front as usual.

Christmas is not so far away and the cry of "Do Your Shopping Early!" has already become the annual slogan. It is a good cry and not a bit far-fetched. It means lots of peace and comfort at the last end of the shopping season.

There is always an over-production of things until the average consumer goes to the shop to purchase them. Then the demand often is greater than the supply and we are taught that the question of demand and supply always fixes the prices.

Winter has brought up its large calibre howitzers and while the bombardment has not yet become furious, still it is just a mild skirmish, a taste of what is to come, as it were, so best be prepared for eventualities.

Be sure and attend the Grand Christmas Opening of the Woolworth stores Nov. 20th, from 2 to 6 o'clock. Hatch's orchestra will be in attendance.

OUR National Opportunity LESSONS for AMERICA from the WAR

OUR WOMEN AND THE CALL OF PATRIOTISM

By George H. Benedict.
Do our American women realize that their patriotism is being put to the test?

In supplying their own needs, do they consider the common good, or do they consult first their taste for imported articles?

A few days ago a leading department store in one of our largest cities, which makes a specialty of high class wearing apparel for women, proudly announced in a large advertisement that it had branches in London, Paris and Berlin, which were constantly sending over large shipments of goods purchased in those foreign markets for American women.

In other words, the announcement said: "Ladies, be assured by us that we shall not deprive you of the privilege of wearing imported clothes. Come to us and we will clothe you with the products of foreign shops and factories, bearing the labels you prize so highly."

Our women should remember that the hands of the American working men are held out to them. When they buy goods made in the U. S. A. they help make conditions better for the wives and children of our home toilers. When they encourage merchants to import wearing apparel for them they send their money out of the country.

I do not believe that our women are consciously ignoring the plea of patriotism when they buy imported articles. Many of these things come in such form that the purchasers never know whether they were manufactured at home or abroad.

It therefore seems that it would be a good plan for merchants to push goods of home manufacture. All will be helped in the end by favoring home industries.

And if our women will take pains to ask for articles of American manufacture, leaving nothing to chance, they can help materially.

"Wrath of the Gods," a Marvelous Piece of Photography, With Wonderful Scenic Effects and Acting.

The feature picture shown at Myers Theatre last evening deserves more than passing attention. It is one of the best pictures ever presented to an audience in Janesville. The scenes are laid in Japan and mostly enacted by Japanese actors. The scene showing the volcanic eruption causes the audience to shudder. It is wonderful to show a veritable Hades let loose through the crater of the volcano and shows a whole village and its inhabitants obliterated. A beautiful love story, a romance between a Japanese girl and an American sailor, and the heroic effect of the terrible eruption and makes up a truly great picture. The picture will be shown again this evening for the last time.

The CALL of the CUMBERLANDS

BY CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK
WITH ILLUSTRATIONS FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF SCENES IN THE PLAY

CHAPTER I.

Close to the serrated backbone of the Cumberland ridge through a sky of mountain clarity, the sun seemed hesitating before its descent to the horizon. The sugar-loaf cone that towered above a creek called Misery was pointed and edged with emerald tracery where the loftiest timber thrust up its crest plumes into the sun. On the hillside it would be light for more than an hour yet, but below, where the waters tossed themselves along in a chorus of tiny cascades, the light was already thickening into a cathedral gloom. Down there the "furnace" would have seen only the rough course of the creek between moss-velveted and shaded bowlders of titanic proportions. The native would have recognized the country road in these tortuous twistings. A great block of sandstone, to whose summit a man standing in his saddle could scarcely reach his fingertips, towered above the stream, with a gnarled scrub oak clinging tenaciously to its apex. Lofty on both sides climbed the mountains cloaked in laurel and timber.

Suddenly the leafage was thrust aside from above by a cautious hand, and a shy, half-wild girl appeared in the opening. For an instant she halted, with her brown fingers holding back the brushwood, and raised her face as though listening. As she stood with the toes of one bare foot twisting in the gratefully cool moss she laughed with the sheer exhilaration of life and youth, and started out on the table top of the huge rock. But there she halted suddenly with a startled exclamation and drew instinctively back. What she saw might well have astonished her, for it was a thing she had never seen before and of which she had never heard. Finally, reassured by the silence, she slipped across the broad face of the flat rock for a distance of twenty-five feet and paused again to listen.

At the far edge lay a pair of saddlebags, such as form the only practical equipment for mountain travelers. Near them lay a tin box, littered with small and unfamiliar-looking tubes of soft metal, all grotesquely twisted and stained, and beside the box was a strangely shaped plaque of wood smeared with a dozen hues. That this plaque was a painter's sketching palette was a thing which she could not know, since the ways of artists had to do with a world as remote from her own as the life of the moon or stars. It was one of those vague mysteries that made up the wonderful life of "down below." Why had these things been left here in such confusion? If there was a man about who owned them he would doubtless return to claim them. She crept over, eyes and ears alert, and slipped around to the front of the queer tripod, with all her muscles poised in readiness for flight.

A half-rapturous and utterly astonished cry broke from her lips. She stared a moment, then dropped to the moss-covered rock, leaning back on her brown hands and gazing intently. "Hit's purty!" she approved, in a low, musical murmur. "Hit's plumb dead beautiful!"

Of course it was not a finished picture—merely a study of what lay before her—but the hand that had placed these brush strokes on the academy board was the sure, deft hand of a master of landscape, who had caught the splendid spirit of the thing and fixed it immutably in true and glowing appreciation. Who he was; where he had gone; why his work stood there unfinished and abandoned, were details which for the moment this half-savage child-woman forgot to question. She was conscious only of a sense of revelation and awe. Then she saw other boards, like the one upon the easel, piled near the paint box. These were dry, and represented the work of other days; but they were all pictures of her own mountains, and in each of them, as in this one, was something that made her heart leap.

To her own people these steep hill-sides and "coves" and valleys were a matter of course. In their stony soil they labored by day, and in their shadowy silent when work was done. Yet someone had discovered that they held a picturesque and rugged beauty; that they were not merely steep fields where the plow was useless and the hoe must be used. She must tell Samson—Samson, whom she held in an artless exaltation of hero worship; Samson, who was so "smart" that he thought about things beyond her understanding; Samson, who could not only read and write, but speculate on problematical matters.

Suddenly she came to her feet with a swift-darting impulse of alarm. Her ear had caught a sound. She cast searching glances about her, but the tangle was empty of humanity. The water still murmured over the rocks undisturbed. There was no sign of human presence, other than herself, that her eyes could discover—and yet to her ears came the sound again, and this time more distinctly. It was the sound of a man's voice, and it was moaning as if in pain. She rose and searched vainly through the bushes of the hillside where the rock ran out from the woods. She lifted her skirts and splashed her feet in the shallow creek water, wading persistently up and down. Her shyness was forgotten. The groan was a groan of a human creature in distress, and she must find and succor the person from whom it came.

Certain sounds are baffling as to direction. A voice from overhead or broken by echoing obstacles does not readily betray its source. Finally she stood up and listened once more intently—her attitude full of tense earnestness.

"I'm shore a fool," she announced, half aloud. "I'm shore a plumb fool." Then she turned and disappeared in the deep cleft between the gigantic bowlder upon which she had been sitting and another—small only by comparison. There, ten feet down, in a narrow alley littered with ragged stones, lay the crumpled body of a man. It lay with the left arm doubled under it, and from a gash in the forehead trickled a thin stream of blood. Also, it was the body of such a man as she had not seen before.

Although from the man came a low groan mingled with his breathing, it was not such a sound as comes from a brain dulled into coma.

Freely from her fettering excess of shyness by his condition, the girl stepped surely from foothold to foothold until she reached his side. She held until she reached his side. She stood for a moment with one hand on the dripping walls of rock, looking down while her hair fell about her face. Then, dropping to her knees, she shifted the doubled body into a leaning posture, straightened the limbs, and began exploring with efficient fingers for broken bones.

She had found the left arm limp above the wrist, and her fingers had diagnosed a broken bone. But unconsciousness must have come from the blow on the head, where a bruise was already blackening, and a gash still trickled blood.

She lifted her skirt and tore a long strip of cotton from her single petticoat. Then she picked her bare-footed way swiftly to the creek bed, where she drenched the cloth for bathing and bandaging the wound. When she had done what she could by way of first aid she sat supporting the man's shoulders and shook her head dubiously.

Finally the man's lids fluttered and his lips moved. Then he opened his eyes.

"Hello!" said the stranger, vaguely. "I seem to have— He broke off, and his lips smiled. It was a friendly, understanding smile, and the girl, fighting hard the shy impulse to drop his shoulders and flee into the kind masking of the bushes, was in a measure reassured.

"You must hev tell often the rock," she enlightened.

"I think I might have fallen into worse circumstances," replied the unknown.

"I reckon you kin set up after a little." (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Then, grasping the arms of his chair, he lifted himself from it and stood trembling upon his own feet for the first time in almost twenty years.

Grasping the back of the wheeled chair, he used it as a crutch to guide his feeble and uncertain movements. But these became momentarily stronger and more confident.

This, then, was the secret he had hugged to his embittered bosom, a secret unsuspected even by the attending surgeon; that through the motor accident three days ago he had regained the use of limbs that had been stricken motionless—strangely enough, by a motor car—nearly two decades since.

Slowly but surely moving to the bureau in the room, he opened one of its drawers and took out something he had, without her knowledge, seen Judith put away there while she thought he slept.

Then, with this hidden in the pocket of his dressing gown he steered a straight if very deliberate course to the door, let himself out, and like a materialized specter of the man he once had been, navigated the corridor to the head of the broad central staircase and step by step, clinging with both hands, negotiated the descent.

The lobby of the hotel was deserted. As the ceremony approached its end every guest and servant in the house was crowding the doorway to the chapel. None opposed the progress of this ghastly vision in dressing gown and slippers, chuckling insanely to himself as he tottered through the empty hall and corridors, finding an almost supernatural strength to sustain him till he found himself face to face with his chosen enemy and victim.

The first that blocked his way into the chapel, a bellboy of the hotel, looked round at the first touch of the claw-like hand upon his shoulder and shrank back with a cry of terror—a cry that was echoed from half a dozen throats within another instant.

As if from the path of some grisly visitant from the world beyond the grave, the throng pressed back and cleared a way for Seneca Trine, father of the bride.

And as the way opened and he looked up toward the altar and saw Alan standing hand in hand with Rose while the minister invoked a blessing upon the union that had been but that instant cemented, added strength, the strength of the insane, was given to Seneca Trine.

When Alan, annoyed by the disturbance in the body of the chapel, looked round, it was to see the aged maniac standing within a dozen feet of him; and as he looked and cried out in wonder, Trine whipped a revolver from the pocket of his dressing gown and swung it steadily to bear upon Alan's head.

At that instant the storm broke with infernal fury upon the land.

A crash of thunder so heavy and prolonged that it seemed to rock the very building upon its foundations, accompanied the shattering of a huge stained-glass window.

A bolt of bluish flame of dazzling brilliance slashed through the window like a flaming sword and smote the pistol in the hand of Seneca Trine, discharging the weapon even as it struck his head.

As he fell the bolt swerved and struck two others down—Alan Law and the woman who had just been made his wife.

CHAPTER LIV.

The Wife.

Again three days elapsed; and Judith, returning from the double funeral of her father and sister, doffed her mourning for a gown less somber and more suited to the atmosphere of a sickroom, then relieved the nurse in charge of Alan.

He remained as he had been ever since the falling of the thunderbolt—in absolute coma.

But he lived; and—or the physicians lied—must soon regain consciousness. Kneeling beside his bedside Judith prayed long and earnestly.

When she arose it was to answer a tap upon the door. She admitted Tom Barcus and suffered him to lead her into the recess of the window, where they conversed in guarded tones in spite of the fact that the subject of their communications could not possibly have heard them.

"I've come to tell you something," Barcus announced with characteristic awkwardness. "I've known it for three days—ever since the wedding, in fact—and kept it to myself, not knowing whether I ought to tell you yet or not."

He paused, eyeing her uncertainly, unhappily.

"I am prepared," Judith assured him calmly.

"You're nothing of the sort," he countered, argumentative. "You couldn't be. It's the most amazing thing imaginable. . . . See here . . ."

"Well?"

"You understand, don't you, that Alan must never know that Rose was killed by that lightning stroke?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean," the man floundered miserably, "you see, he loved her so—I thought—I'm sure it would be best—if you can bring yourself to it—to let him go on believing it wasn't Rose who was killed, but Judith. And that's skating so close to the truth that it makes no difference: the Judith Alan knew and the Judith I knew in the beginning is gone as completely as though she and not Rose had been killed."

After a long pause, the girl asked him, quietly: "I understand. But is it possible you don't understand that, if I were to consent to this proposition, I lend myself to a deception which I must maintain through all my life to come—Alan would consider me his wife?"

"Well, but—you see—you are his wife. . . . Oh, don't think I'm off my bat. I'm telling you the plain, unvarnished truth. You are Alan's wife. . . . No, listen to me. You remember that day in New York when you substituted for Rose, when Alan tried to elope with her, and you went with him to Jersey City, and stood up to be married by a preacher-guy named Wright—and Marrophat broke in just at the critical moment and busted up the party?"

"Well?" she demanded breathlessly. Barcus produced a folded yellow paper from his coat pocket and proffered it.

"Read that. It was handed to me as best man, just before the ceremony. Seeing it was addressed to Alan and knowing he was in no frame of mind to be bothered by telegrams, I slipped it into my pocket and forgot all about it temporarily. When I came to find it, I took the liberty of reading it. But read it for yourself."

The typewritten lines of the long message blurred and ran together almost indecipherably in Judith's vision. None the less, she contrived to grasp the substance of its meaning.

"WHY DIDN'T YOU WIRE ME SOONER," it ran: "MARRIAGE TO ROSE IMPOSSIBLE. REV. MR. WRIGHT INFORMED ME YOUR MARRIAGE TO JUDITH LAST WEEK HAD GONE TOO FAR WHEN

MARROPHAT INTERRUPTED. JUDITH LEGALLY YOUR WIFE. WOULD HAVE ADVISED YOU SOONER HAD YOU LET ME KNOW WHERE TO ADDRESS YOU. HOPE TO HEAVEN THIS GETS TO YOU BEFORE TOO LATE."

The message was signed with the name of Alan's confidential man of business in New York.

When Judith looked up she was alone in the room, but for the silent patient on his couch.

Slowly, almost fearfully, she crept to his bedside and stood looking down into the face of her husband.

And while she looked Alan's lashes fluttered, his respiration quickened, a faint color crept into his pallid cheeks—and his eyes opened wide and looked into hers.

His lips moved and breathed a word of recognition:

"Judith!"

With a low cry of tenderness, the girl sank to her knees and encircled his head with her arms.

"Judith," she whispered, hiding her face in his bosom, "Judith is no more."

A pause; and then the feeble voice:

"Then, if I was mistaken, if you aren't Judith, you must be Rose—my wife!"

She said steadily: "I am your wife. His hands fumbled with her face, closed upon her cheeks, lifted her head until her eyes must look into his.

And for many minutes he held her so, looking deep into the soul of the woman.

Then quietly he said: "I know . . ."

MILTON JUNCTION

Milton, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Cora Belle Davy was born Nov. 4, 1869 and died at her home here Nov. 12, 1914. Her early life was spent on a farm west of town. After finishing the district school she attended Milton College in 1886. She was united in marriage to E. F. Davy. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Chicago where they lived for some time. Later they resided in Milton. After leaving Milton they came to this place where they have since made their home.

To them were born four children: Myrtle, who died in infancy; Edna, Edwin and William. To mourn her loss besides the three surviving children she leaves a husband, two brothers and two sisters.

She was a loving mother and wife. Although many times not in the best of health she was never known to complain. Any sacrifice which she could make to help others was never to her. She was a member of the M. E. church. The O. E. S. and R. N. A. of which she was a member both marched in bodies. In both these societies she held a high position and will be greatly missed.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 at the home and 2:30 at the M. E. church. Interment at the Milton cemetery. Many and beautiful. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the entire community.

LAXATIVE FOR A CROSS, CONSTIPATED, SICK CHILD, "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

A COATED TONGUE MEANS SLUGGISH LIVER AND BOWELS—LISTEN, MOTHER!

Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once. When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has sour stomach, diarrhoea, remember a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills. Give a tea-

OVER THE ROCKIES BY MOTOR ENGINES IS ST. PAUL'S PLAN

Four Hundred Miles of Puget Sound System to be Electrified—Biggest Venture of its Kind.

According to the latest report originating in Chicago, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway company will electrify 400 miles of right of way in the next four years and consequently spend some $13,000,000 in the electrification work.

Work, it is said, will be started on the new Puget Sound route. The entire section to the northward of the Rockies and near the seats of the great electric power houses of the country.

A preliminary expenditure of $2,000,000 has already been made with the General Electric company which involves a contract for supplies to be used first.

This is the greatest electrification undertaking up to the present time, either in America or in any other country. It is the most progressive step yet taken forward general electrification by any American railroad, and is the first of its kind in the world.

The proposed electrification crosses three separate mountain ranges, Ritter, Roots, the Rock mountains, and the Belt mountains, all within the territory known as the Continental divide, with many miles of three-tenths and six-tenths per cent gradients between the ranges. The line at the summit of the Ritter Range, reaches an elevation of 4,170 feet, the Rockies, 6,222 feet, and the Belts 5,788 feet. Companies perform these services. Plants will be erected at several points, along the line. In time the entire line will be developed a tremendous reservoir of electrical energy at Great Falls from which may be drawn any amount of power to operate the railway, helping, and switching service will be performed by electrical locomotives. The electrical systems will be safer, cleaner, and more regular, and will be considerably to our speed records.

The electrical engines that will be placed on the Puget sound line can be relied upon to make from 200 to 300 miles at the average speed of 30 miles per hour, without stopping, and as there will be no delays on the road for coal, water, cleaning fires, or waiting for steam. The company will be handled with fewer engines, with better advantage to the shipper because of the speed, and to the passenger because of the elimination of the annoyances of steam travel.

Electric motors are safer than the steam engines on the steep grades because they brake themselves automatically and make the use of air brakes unnecessary except in emergencies.

STREET EXTENSION WILL BE COMPLETED

City Council Votes to Continue South Third Street Project Without Further Delay.

On the order of the city council, City Attorney W. H. Dougherty was directed to dismiss the appeal, filed in the county court, relative to the decision rendered in the South Third street extension case as the city commission has decided to accept the purchase price of the Kreuger property and reassess the land for benefits and damages. This action was taken yesterday by the commission at the weekly meeting held in the afternoon.

This step will mean that the city will pay a total of $797.52, of which amount $400 is for the Kreuger estate and the remainder $397.52 for the flowright property, the two pieces necessary for the extension. At an early date the board of public works will reassess the benefits and damages to property affected by the improvement and a new schedule which will be made out at the increased rate. The city's share will amount to over a hundred dollars.

The attitude of the councilmen expressed of late was that the project was not worth the price, and until the petition of the interested property owners was received, asking for the continuance of the work, they were considering the advisability of dropping the work or appealing assessment controversy to a higher court. Because the majority of property owners asked for the extension of the street, the councilmen, by their action, will raise the assessments and have the street extended during the coming spring.

City Clerk Hammann was directed to order a "motorcar" from the Life Saving Device company, costing $135. A complete equipment will be included in the order. The councilmen were recently given a demonstration of the modern methods of suspension and were thoroughly satisfied that the apparatus would prove a benefit to the city. It will be made a part of the fire department equipment.

The report of the board of public works, with recommendations on a levy required for sewerage districts number one and thirteen, was received and filed. The board of district number twelve was one mill and in number thirteen, five mills. This is for improvement work to be undertaken next year.

The report of Miss Elizabeth Javre, acting visiting nurse, was received and placed on file. The report shows that during the month of October there were four deaths, one of which under the nurse's care, eight of which were new ones. Eight of these cases were dismissed as recovered and twenty-five patients still remain under her care. One hundred and four calls were made during the month.

City Clerk Hammann was instructed to draw an order, payable from the general fund, for payment to the owners of the Wright building on South River street, which was used for election purposes. The rent totaled $16, as there were three registration days as well as the general election.

The report of the committee, composed of Mayor James A. Fathers, City Attorney Dougherty and City Treasurer George Muenchow, on the sale of the DeWitt school bonds, was received and filed. It was stated that the accrued interest for the bonds amounted to $1593.

Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

SERIOUS CATARRH YIELDS TO HYOMEL

Also One of the Best Remedies for Head Colds or Bronchitis.

Be wise in time and use Hyomel at the first symptom of catarrh, such as frequent colds, constant froes in the throat, difficult breathing or disagreeable nasal discharges. Do not let the disease become deep-seated for it often causes the loss of hearing.

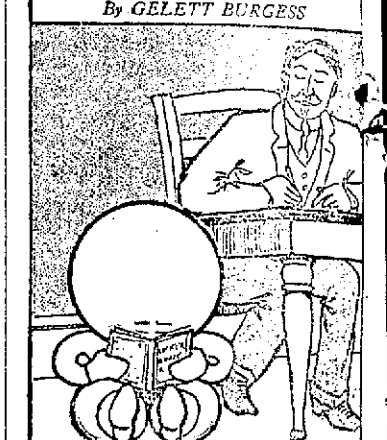

Hyomel is nature's true remedy for catarrh—you breathe it so that the inflammation goes right to the sore and inflamed tissues lining the air passages of the head and throat. Its antiseptic healing must begin at once. It is no bother to use Hyomel. Simply put a few drops of the liquid into the inhaler, and breathe it. Every complete outfit, and breathe it. You will feel better after the first breath of Hyomel. It clears the head and throat like magic.

There is nothing easier, quicker and more satisfying than Hyomel. It is not merely a relief for catarrh but a sure and lasting benefit. Smith Drug Co. sell Hyomel on the guarantee of money back if it does not cure.

BRONCHIAL COUGHS

When the bronchial tubes are affected with that weakening, tickling cough, they need immediate and sensible treatment. The breath seems shorter because of mucous obstructions; usually fever is present and your head jars with every cough. Your chest aches and the inflammation often spreads to the lungs.

The food- tonic that has proven its worth for forty years—is Scott's Emulsion. It drives out the cold, which is the root of the trouble, and checks the cough by aiding the healing process of the enfeebled membranes.

If you are troubled with bronchitis or know an afflicted friend, always remember that Scott's Emulsion builds strength while relieving the trouble.

JUDGE GRIMM WROTE ON WAR SITUATION

British War Relief Fund Sends Out an Appeal for Aid From English Presidents.

In the following communication received from the British War Relief Fund society of New York an appeal is made for aid to their work. Headed "War in Winter" the communication reads:

"So dreadful have been the events of the past months that it has seemed as if nothing could be worse, but this was a fallacious conclusion. Of all war, winter war is the most frightful, for its agonies are particularly without intermission, and the men who will have to endure them are not Balkan mountaineers."

The above extract is made from a recent article in "The New York Times," and the undersigned earnestly appeal to the members of the British Community, residents in the United States of America, and others interested, for gifts of warm clothing for the British soldiers and sailors in the field.

Those who cannot give the time necessary for making the garments are requested to spare a donation, however small, in order to buy the articles, or to provide the material, which will be given to be made up by those who perhaps cannot afford to give money, but are kind enough to offer their time.

The articles required are mufflers, wristlets, socks, chokers, hats, helmets, cardigan jackets and for the Hospital, old linen, bandages, sheets, pillow cases, etc.

The following gentlemen have kindly allowed their names to be used, as guarantee of the good faith of this appeal.

George A. Morrison, Jr., President

In the last issue of the Jefferson County Union appears a personal letter of Judge George Grimm to W. D. Hoard, which is published below, as it expresses the Judge's opinion on the present war situation. The letter and explanation is as follows:

A private letter written to the senior editor of this paper by Judge George Grimm of Jefferson contained no more than a true sentiment as to the wickedness of war, and especially this European war, that we have requested permission to print the same. The letter follows here:

August 27, 1914.

My Dear Governor:—I received your favor of the 21st inst., also the "Outlook," and I thank you for both. The writer of the article to which you refer has given me a good analysis of the German character generally, and I agree with him largely. However, on the broad subject of the cause of the present war, he after all, alludes to but a phenomena of the basic trouble. With what measure of justice it shall be measured unto you again. Which side started it in the distant past nobody knows, but at the present there is mutual hate and resentment of which words means and occasion are presented war is always the culmination.

The originator of the saying "the way to prevent war is to be prepared for it," could not possibly be further from the truth. Where preparedness for war has hatred for a basis its coming is but a matter of time.

Let us go to the root of the trouble. St. Paul wrote to whom he yielded himself servants to obey his servants ye are to whom ye obey. Hate is evil. War is probably its worst manifestation so far as mankind is concerned. Preparing for war is providing evil with machinery and instruments. Indulge the sense of hate and instill the spirit of war into a nation and equip them for war, and they are going to have it. Evil nourished grows—it never stands still. Its ultimate is annihilation and when it can culminate in war with all its horrors it gets somewhere near its ultimate though it never reaches it. War when reached emits still more hate and just for revenge then before—because evil is never conquered by force.

What a commentary it all is on so-called Christianity! Can men hate, and kill and murder each other, and be Christians? The Master Christ gave only two laws to govern man and these he declared to be co-equal, namely, first, "love God (Good) above all things," and second, "love thy neighbor thyself." No other rule of freedom from all evil is given unto man. Obedience to the law of love is the grand commandment he left us. It is the only power that is able to overcome evil in all its phases. Disobedience to that law is the cause of war.

Yes, under the existing situation war was inevitable; but may it open the eyes of mankind to the fact that the continuing parties are bearing what they have sown; and may mankind learn that since war is evil, to provide the means for war is to encourage it not insure it. Would that mankind would at least strive to live by the "Golden Rule."

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE GRIMM.

Willing Demonstrator.

HURTY TELLS HOW TO GET RID OF RODENTS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

La Fayette, Ind., Nov. 18.—This city is credited with being the first in the United States to endeavor to exterminate rats before the rodents had become a menace to the public health. The business men have needed the warning of the state board of health and the Chamber of Commerce has begun to act on the advice of Dr. J. N. Hurty, state health commissioner.

After explaining that California and New Orleans had spent many millions to exterminate rats and quench the bubonic plague, carried by rats, and that rats from New Orleans might easily come up the Mississippi on river boats and spread the plague in the middle west, Dr. Hurty gave a course of procedure to the business men. Here it is:

1.—Let the Chamber of Commerce gather all the facts obtainable concerning rats and methods of destroying them.

2.—Create public opinion against the rat so that the presence of one on the premises will be noticeable.

3.—Let every member of the Chamber of Commerce promise to rid his premises of rodents and make the premises rat-proof.

4.—Abolish rat-producing conditions such as piles of trash, dilapidated out-houses, piles of garbage, etc.

5.—Pass a city ordinance declaring the rat a nuisance and assessing after a given period a fine of 10c per rat against property owners on whose premises rats are found.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Nov. 18.—The normal school alumni, who are in Beloit, enjoyed a reunion at the Hackett kindergarten building, Beloit, last Saturday evening. Twenty teachers were present, the guest of honor being Miss Annie M. Correll, who was the head of the English department in the local school for many years. She is now in charge of the junior house of Beloit college. A large bouquet of white chrysanthemums was presented to Miss Correll by the teachers, who were her former students at the normal school. The evening's entertainment consisted of some excellent vocal music, old time songs were sung, and a trio—Misses Palmer, Waite and Waite—furnished two numbers. Ferns, flowers and Whitewater and Beloit pennants decorated the rooms, and those present hope there may be more pleasant evenings devoted to renewing old friendships.

Mrs. Luella Norris of Palmyra was a week-end guest of Mrs. George Lindsey.

George Lindsey went to Waukesha yesterday to take the mud baths.

Mrs. Henry Ballou of Ladysmith is here assisting her sisters care for their mother, Mrs. R. E. Dickerson, who has been ill for many months.

This cold weather put a stop to active work on the house which J. J. Jelliffe is building on Whitton street, next door south of A. A. Coburn's residence.

ENDS HIS OWN LIFE USING A SHOT GUN

Monroe Young Man Commits Suicide in Barber Shop in Tragic Manner Tuesday Afternoon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Monroe, Wis., Nov. 18.—Walter Cook, aged 27, took his life at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Will Sacker's barber shop when he shot himself in the head, the charge entering the left side and killing him instantly. He left a note saying he was tired of living. He had entered the shop a few minutes previous with the shotgun which he wanted to leave with his brother, Delbert Cook, an employee in the shop. He then told Mr. Sacker he wanted to take a bath. He evidently sat on a chair in the bath room with the butt of the gun on the floor, and then pulled the trigger with his hand.

Cook had been working in the cement business with his father, William Cook. A brother, John Cook, resides in Prescott. His death is the second tragic one in the family within a few months, a brother, Frank Cook, taking his life recently by shooting himself through the head while alone in a box car at Watertown, Wis., where for some years he was superintendent of waterworks. A sister, Mrs. John F. Sissons, lives in this city.

HURRY-UP ORDERS ON PANAMA CANAL

As Time Limit, July, 1916 Approach Col. Goethals Rushes Finish- ing Touches to "Ditch."

(Correspondence of The A. P.)

Panama, Nov. 18.—A hurry-up order has been issued by Governor Goethals for the completion of the canal. The time limit set by Congress is July 1, 1916, and Col. Goethals is determined that the last of the finishing touches in every department from dredging to landscape gardening shall be completed ahead rather than behind time. Col. Goethals himself is setting a pace, and may be seen often at work in the Administration Building at Balboa late at night.

Men and machines now on the isthmus are said to be working harder than at any time since the great work was started ten years ago.

Every morning Col. Goethals appears at some part of the work where he has been for several days previously, to hurry things along. There is the case of the steam shovels delving into the side of Sosa Hill for the rock that goes to form the east breakwater in front of Colon Harbor. On each one is a huge placard which shows the numbers of cars loaded as the work progresses. For every job a mark has been set to be surpassed if possible. On Sosa Hill the man who has charge of loading the cars that take the rock 50 miles across the isthmus to the new breakwater is working against the man in charge of transporting the same cars those 50 miles while the man who unloads them out near the end of the 2 mile trestle is rushing things so that he will always be just ahead of the other two. At present there are 200 to 250 cars of rock sent him every working day.

Out in Cluebra Cut where a large slide recently choked the channel for a standstill with a large number of ships seeking passage through the narrow cases only during the eight daylight hours when the canal is used for navigation purposes.

The men work in two shifts and as they eat and sleep on the dredges no time is wasted. Their work is handling the recent slide and reopening the canal to traffic within five days from Col. Goethals.
